Waterbeach train station requires significant upgrades. The current station is too small and cannot cope with the volume of traffic. Trains are regularly full to the brim and you rarely get a seat on peak time trains. I support the upgrade and movement of the station. However, access to the new station needs careful consideration and planning. I don’t see how Cody Road can become a main access route. Housing on Cody Road has doubled in the last 2 years and traffic is slowly creeping up. I foresee the same access issues that we already experience with the current station.

Please can an access route north of the station be considered? Why does traffic have to go through the village? Can a direct access route from the A10 be considered?
