It’s not fair on the old currently they can walk to the London platform. The new station makes them use lifts and bridges.

The railway company has already agreed to 8 carriage trains to be worth while the station will need to be 12 carriage trains.

The roads in Waterbeach are a mess from construction any construction vehicles need to come off the A10 on a new road direct to the location not via the village.

What is the benefit the station is already going to be 8 carriages and cars from Horningsea, Fen Ditton, Milton, Cottenham don’t really use the main parts of the village. For the new station to work we need the new A10 Road first.

I guess for 10 years plus the train station will be a sore thumb so why move it as no new houses will be built for a long time.

The application seems to be hurried because the railway company was going to extend our current station that old, young and other people could use with ease. The access to the London platform is silly. This is the platform most used by students and school children.

Just extend the current station or build the road from the A10 roundabout.
